

Croatian Reading Association

presents

The Fortune of Reading written by Croatian author Danko Plevnik (2006) and translated to English language (2009)

The Fortune of Reading : The book of essays on reading

"This humble booklet will certainly not contribute to a permanent planetary establishment of the reading virtus which I would sincerely like it to do (not in terms of "the male perfection" as the etymology of vir might suggest, but as a universally human perfection, which homo legens, even in cyberspace should aspire to if he wants to preserve his humanistic dignity), but it will hopefully help at least those who are not indifferent to the eternal challenge of the book to encounter the fortuna of reading more audaciously."

Contents

Preface

1. The 21st Century Reader: A Pioneer or a Victim
2. The Semantics of Reconstructivism
3. The Most Important Concern for a University
4. What is Legology
5. Croatian Legology Today

References

Subject/Author/Title Index

About the Author

Danko Plevnik is the first doctor of information science in Croatia, the first Croatian member of the International Reading Association (IRA), the author of the term legology or the science of reading (1978), one of the founders of the Croatian Reading Association (1991) and the honorary member of its presidency (2006).

Order information:

price 15,00 EUR

For order please contact Croatian Reading Association at hcd@hcd.hr